Can you give a whole team a Goodie?

Monday, October 29, 2012

First, I want to thank those who have been reading my blogs. After 3 years of being totally mute on SP, suddenly the words are tumbling out and through my keyboard.

In addition I would like to thank whole teams. Two in particular – Maintenance and Masters Runners. Finding a niche has changed my attitude. Instead of being overwhelmed with the hundreds of thousands of Sparkers and lost in the maze of information, I have a home – a couple of homes actually – and a few more I plan to visit more often.

Ok, I suppose you are my “imaginary” friends and acquaintances, but we are united in a common purpose nonetheless. Reading about your successes, setbacks and plans to improve encourage me to strive to be a better person in all areas of life.

One of the trivia questions last week was whether or not Sparkers who participate in Community are more successful than those who don't. The answer was TRUE and although I hover at the 66% correct mark, this time I guessed right figuring that it wouldn't have been asked if it wasn't true.

I really believe it.

So thank you all. You're making my mornings brighter and strengthening my resolve to continue this journey. Now I'm off to the gym in a rainstorm, the beginning of Sandy, I suppose. If I didn't start my day here, I might have just pulled the covers over my head and gone back to sleep.

It's really true for me too . . . the people I've met here are a huge motivation to keep on keeping on!

(also: loved your blog about getting faster relatively as you get older . . . wish I could still run sigh)
