"Later Never Comes"

Thursday, September 20, 2012

"Mommy, will you color with me?" asked my 4 yr old daughter back in 1973. Maybe I was busy with the baby. Maybe I had homework to do (grad school). I don't remember why, but I replied, "Later, Jeannie, I'll do it later." Sadly, she said, "Later never comes." Yes, I changed my mind and picked up a crayon.

I remember that now whenever I'm tempted to put off something I know I should do, like plan my food for the day or get out and exercise. I'm trying to extend that to other procrastinating areas of my life.

Going through my deceased parents things: That's hard. Each item has a memory attached.

Catching up with an old friend: Facebook makes this easier, doesn't it?

Gathering healthy recipes: Thank you SP. You've simplified this for me.

Jeannie will be 43 on Saturday. She's well aware of her 4 year old wisdom and applies it to her own family life.

That is excellent. Later does never come I have ignored my cats and took the time to play with them.
On the important issues like exercising..that is good to tell yourself...No choice..later never comes.
