Where have all my old friends gone? Day 14

Saturday, May 21, 2016

Today's group of 20 friends deserves a gold star from Spark. 18 are still active. That's a remarkable 90%

I didn't have to remind myself of who they are because they are active here regularly and I "see" them here all the time even if they are not specifically interacting with me.

At some point I may look more closely to see if they have anything in common that would indicate persistence. Nothing jumps out immediately. My friends list is ordered chronologically according to the date I added them.

After 2 weeks the results are:
137 out of 260 are still actively sparking. That's 53%

Here's the day by day results

Day	Active	Inactive/Missing	% active
1	7	3	70%
2	6	4	60%
3	5	5	50%
4	9	11	45%
5	7	13	35%
6	8	12	40%
7	11	9	55%
8	12	8	60%
9	12	8	60%
10	9	11	45%
11	9	11	45%
12	10	10	50%
13	14	16	47%
14	18	2	90%

I'm getting on the road now to attend the HS graduation of grandson #3. He's class valedictorian and will be making a speech.

Congratulations to your grandson on his graduation and honors as valedictorian.

18 out of 20 still active? Wow! Would be interesting to see what might be learned upon further inspection.

Congratulations are in order for your grandson! Where is he planning to go to college?

Wow, that one group that is still 90% active deserves to be looked into!!

Congratulations to your grandson!

Interesting with today's group, though. I wonder what the key factor is for them?

How very, very exciting to hear your grandson, the valedictorian, speak. I almost got tears thinking about it. Hope you can keep from choking up. I was just so proud of my granddaughter at her piano recital don't know if I could handle anything more momentous!!

Appreciate your analysis of the friends still here and those who have gone elsewhere. I have over 300 friends and I'm not sure that 50%+ would still be active. Some day I may undertake a study like yours!

That bit of information about keeping your friend list in the order they were added puts an extra filter on. I friend back just about everyone who adds me as a friend, but from time to time I have made a stab at re-ordering them so the most active would be at the top of the list, and I wondered how you knew which were the longest term "friends".

It gives the possibility of another form of analysis... did something about the people you chose to befriend during certain time frames in your journey and your own mind set speak to you as your continued your own path? Hmmm... very complex social psychology study!

And lest I forget... congrats to the new graduate in the family, and may he rock that speech!

KENWANNE2013

Hello I have been dipping in and out for a while, my recently out as I am recovering from an operation - which in all honesty isn't an excuse for not logging, even if exercise is difficult. Personal/work related issues have also been challenging - but again...have to keep reminding myself that that isn't a reason to go off goal!! An excuse maybe  but not a reason.

Thank you for the reminder about being active on Spark. Like many others, I end up just popping in, collecting points and logging (food or exercise..mainly food at the moment), which is a shame because that is such a small % of what we gain being Sparkers!! In particular the online friendships we develop. I'm determined to get back on goal, and re-establish contact with folk.

Congratulations to your grandson!

I am one of the inactive ones 😊 I peek in but often don't take time to speak or track my food, though I do use spark to keep track of exercise/mileage and weight.

Congratulations to your grandson, what a superb accomplishment, I know you are proud as is the rest of the family.

Safe travels, enjoy and thanks for your little foray into the continuity of SFs on Sparkpeople.
